An old, tired-looking dog wandered into my yard. I could tell from his collar and well-fed belly that he had a home.

He followed me into the house, down the hall, and fell asleep on the couch. An hour later, he went to the door, and I let him out. The next day he was back, resumed his position on the couch and slept for an hour. This continued for several days. Curious, I pinned a note to his collar: "Every afternoon your dog comes to my house for a nap."

The next day he arrived with a different note pinned to his collar: "He lives in a home with four kids, he's trying to catch up on his sleep. Can I come with him tomorrow?"

Hey DEVILer.. I've given up social media for the New Year and am trying to make friends outside Facebook while applying the same principles. Every day, I walk down the street and tell passersby what I've eaten, how I feel, what I did the night before, and what I'll do tomorrow. Then I give them pictures of my family, my dog, and me at the local bar. I also listen to their conversations and tell them I love them. And it works. I already have three people following me, two cops and a psychiatrist. Casey T., Elm, NJ

My mother told me this story and I thought that it would a good print for your funny paper.

During World War II my grandmother lived in Holland where food was very scarce. Every week she would knit a pair of socks and take them to a local farmer to exchange them for dairy products. The cotton yarn was obtained by unraveling a large bedspread crocheted by her grandmother.

When the bedspread was down to its final skein, she told the farmer's wife this was the last pair of socks and could they exchange something else.

"That's fine" said the farmer's wife, "I only needed one more to finish my bedspread "

Deviler... This is not a joke! sent in by reader Patricia S., Dothan, AL

We had just finished tucking our three kids into bed when our three-year-old 'Billy' began to cry. Turns out, he had accidentally swallowed a penny and was sure he was going to die. Desperate to get him to calm him down, so we could call our doctor, my husband palmed a penny that he had in his pocket and pretended to pull it from Billy's ear.

Billy was delighted. In a flash, he snatched it from my husband's hand, swallowed it, and demanded, "Do it again Daddy.. do it again!"

The DEVILer's Philosophy is simple: I believe God is the creator. I believe all human life was and is created equally. I believe that in God's perfectness, we each have been given a choice on how to live this life. Good, Bad or Indifferent. It is my goal to put a smile on my readers faces by presenting them with funny jokes, funny stories, funny pictures and funny cartoons. Hopefully most of you will find them humorous. It is my intent that all this stuff I print falls within this philosophy. If ever you see a funny in the DEVILer, that does not agree with my belief, that all people are created equally, then that joke/cartoon was printed by mistake. This mishap has happened in the past but does not reflect the thinking behind the DEVILer. Unfortunately, occasionally, we become very rushed just before we go to press and shit happens! Once in a while funnies get published without close enough scrutiny. If your feelings have ever been hurt by any of these whims I am truly sorry.... if you find that it happens again... merely pass this paper on to another person.

Thank you for reading "South Jersey's #1 Funny Paper".
