WHEN FRIENDS GET TOGETHER... From Spring Hill, Florida Mike Merced & Kristy Chirieleison, Alison Hughes of Pittsgrove, NJ and Lauren Wunsch of Sewell, New Jersey.

The one thing that drove me absolutely crazy about my old boyfriend Jethro was the way he drove. He would insist on driving in the dead center of a two way intersection, and no matter how much I complained, sulked, and threatened, nothing helped. The only consolation I found was the thought that at least the cars coming towards us, were staying in their lane. Sure enough, I soon resigned myself to my fate, but I would still cringe all too often while on the road.

Well, the day finally came when I was to meet Jethro's family. We headed to the small hick town that he was from in western Pennsylvania, and had a grand ol' time with his folks. It was when we went out for a drive in the old family pick up that I learned that things could get quite a bit worse.

"Don't worry about my husband's driving in the center of the road," said Jethro's mom with a big friendly smile, as we headed onto a two way intersection. "That's what everyone does around here!"

I stopped at a new diner today... they combined tuna and hamburger helper... and tried to pass it off as surf and turf.

This moron was from Louisiana: The man walked into a Circle-K, put a $20 bill on the counter and asked for change. When the clerk opened the cash drawer, the man pulled a gun and asked for all the cash in the register, which the clerk promptly provided. The man took the cash from the clerk and fled, leaving the $20 bill on the counter. The total amount of cash he got from the drawer? Fifteen dollars. So here is the question: If someone points a gun at you and gives you money, was it a crime committed?
