

The British Royal Family is famous for their stiff upper lip and acting with dignity and class for formal occasions. But the Windsors actually have a great sense of humor. Over the years, they have all made hilarious comments and jokes that have kept fans amused.. many of them from the Queen's famously gaffe-prone husband, Prince Philip. As Prince Harry says, "They are very funny together. My family is the same as any other family when it comes to humor behind closed doors."

Hey DEVILer... I called a psychic once. She asked who was on the line, so I hung up.

An Australian research writer touring the United States was checking out of the Phoenix Hilton, and as he paid his bill said to the manager, asked, "By the way, what's with the Indian chief sitting in the lobby?"

He's been there ever since I arrived."

"Oh that's 'Big Chief Forget-me-not'," said the manager. "The hotel is built on an Indian reservation, and part of the agreement is to allow the chief free use of the premises for the rest of his life. He is known as 'Big Chief Forget-me Not' because of his phenomenal memory. He is 92 and can remember the slightest detail of his life."

The writer took this in, and as he was waiting for his cab decided to put the chief's memory to the test.

"ello, mate!" said the Aussie, receiving only a slight nod in return. "What did you have for breakfast on your 21st. birthday?"

"Eggs," was the chief's instant reply, without even looking up, and indeed the Aussie was impressed.

He went off on his research writing itinerary, across to New York and back, telling others of Big Chief Forget-me-not's great memory. (One local noted to him that 'How' was a more appropriate greeting for an Indian chief than 'ello mate.')

On his return to the Phoenix Hilton six months later was surprised to see 'Big Chief Forget-me-not' still sitting in the lobby, fully occupied with whittling away on a stick.

"How!" said the Aussie.

"Scrambled," said the Chief.
