Excerpts:

A recent interview with former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger (age 96) gives us a new understanding of President Donald Trump's foreign policy and predicts its success:

"Liberals and all those who favor Clinton (Hillary) will never admit it. They will never admit that he is the one true leader. The man is doing changes like never before and does all of it for the sake of this nation's people. After eight years of tyranny, we finally see a difference."

Kissinger continued with: "Every country now has to consider two things: One, their perception that the previous president basically withdrew America from international politics, so that they had to make their own assessments of their necessities. And secondly, that there is a new president who's asking a lot of unfamiliar questions. And because of the combination of the partial vacuum and the new questions, one could imagine that something remarkable and new emerges out of it."

Kissinger put it bluntly: "Trump puts America and its people first. This is why people love him and this is why he will remain in charge for so long. There is not a single thing wrong with him and people need to open their eyes." When he boasted that he has a "bigger red button" than Kim Jung Un does, he so transcends the mealy-mouthed rhetoric of the past, thereby forcing a new recognition of American power. Our allies grew complaisant with Obama's passivity and now are fearful due to Trump's activism. And they must balance the two in developing their policies: They realize that the old assumptions, catalyzed by Bush 43's preoccupation with Iraq and Obama's refusal to lead are obsolete. So, Trump is forcing a new calculus with a new power behind American interests. Those - here and abroad - who rode the old apple cart worry about its being toppled.

"Trump is the one true leader in world affairs and he is forcing policy changes that puts America first!"

A Republican and a Democrat were walking down the street when they came to a homeless person. The Republican gave him his business card and told him to stop by for a job. He then took $20 out of his pocket and handed it to him.

The Democrat was impressed, and when they came to another homeless person, he decided it was his turn to help. So he reached into the Republican's pocket and gave the homeless man $50.

Open your arms to change, but don't let go of your values.

DID YOU KNOW that Pelosi voted for the Border Fence Act of 2006. She told NBC News' Chuck Todd: "The president (Obama) ... is expressing a sign of weakness. He's saying, 'I can't control our borders. I have to build a wall.'"

My Husband the Football Coach

As the wife of a high school football coach, I'm aware that student athletes tend to focus too much on sports. I got a call one night from one of my husbands frantic players saying that he had to speak to the coach right away.

"Just calm down," I said, "and I'll have him call you as soon as he gets home. Now, what is your number?"

The flustered kid replied, "Eleven".

LITTLE GREEN FROGS

It was one of those windy and bitter cold February Sunday afternoons. The deer seasons were over, too cold to think of fishing, and cabin fever had set in early. Nothing to do now but have a few buddies over to the man cave, drink a few beers, have a few shots of Crown Royal Reserve, shoot a game or two of pool and tell hunting and fishing stories of the not too distant past.

As the recollections instinctively became a game of Top This, the gut piles and flopping fish began to clutter the floor around the billiard table. Just as sure as another thirty-pack had been salvaged so were the stories becoming more difficult to top until this story was told. This is how the story played out that Sunday afternoon.

"It was, I guess, either March or April or maybe even May, but I do know the mornings were cool.... I mean cold for this old man bones!"

I was down at Elmer lake standing on the shore fishing when I had just been taken by the biggest bass I'd ever seen. He broken high out of the water as he ripped me off of my last night crawler.

So there I stand, out of bait, cold, and still another hour until the local bait and tackle store was to open.

As I check the pockets of my old army field jacket for a possible escapee from my worm container I came across a half pint of blackberry brandy that I had been taken for medicinal purposes.

Not waiting for my throat to signal that persistent cough, I greedily took a swig from the bottle. The liquid was cold but felt warm going down. As I looked down to screw the cap back on I noticed a small water snake at my foot which was about to swallow a little green frog. As we all know, bass just love little green frogs. So I removed the frog from the snakes mouth with great care and hooked it to my line.

It was great cast and all there was left to do was wait for big Bubba the bass to finish his morning breakfast.

Looking down I noticed that the little snake appeared to be disoriented to the fact that he had just lost his prized meal. Now, feeling a little bit guilty, I poured a small amount of brandy on the snakes darting tongue. The snake stayed for a couple of minutes and then left. I presumed to find another meal but at least he left me feeling much more comfortable than I had felt before I shared my drink with him.

I'm not sure, but it was probably a half an hour or so, or maybe even longer when I felt a tapping sensation on the side of my boot. As I looked down at my foot I was amazed but not really surprised. There was the snake, at the heel of my boot... and would you believe it. Had another little green frog in its mouth!"
